Re: Request To Consolidate The Proposed Persuader Advice Exemption Rule (RIN: 1245-AA03) With The Impending Proposal To Change Form LM-21 (RIN: 1245-AA05)

Dear Administrator Shelanski:

The undersigned represent millions of employers who employ many millions of employees throughout the United States. We write to notify you of serious procedural and substantive concerns that we have with the above-captioned rulemakings. The Department of Labor's (DOL) proposed persuader advice exemption rule is so closely intertwined with DOL's proposal to make changes to the yearly receipts and disbursement report (Form LM-21), that the two rulemakings should proceed concurrently, rather than separately as currently indicated.<sup>1</sup> Accordingly, we respectfully request that the proposed persuader advice exemption rule be returned to DOL in order to be consolidated with DOL's inextricably linked proposal to change Form LM-21.

The most recent Regulatory Agenda (Agenda), published on November 19, 2015, notes that the proposed persuader advice exemption rule is scheduled to be finalized in March, 2016.<sup>2</sup> The Agenda further notes that a notice of proposed rulemaking to make changes to Form LM-21 is not even scheduled to issue until six months later, in September, 2016. Form LM-21 is the reporting form that the persuader must file which discloses "all receipts from employers in connection with labor relations advice..." Making changes to the persuader advice exemption without making concurrent changes to Form LM-21 renders the form obsolete and potentially undermines the persuader reporting process.

&lt;sup>1</sup> Proposed changes to other applicable forms in the persuader reporting process – Forms LM-10 and LM-20 – were appropriately included in the proposed persuader exemption rule. It follows that the third reporting form, LM-21, should be included, as well.

We made Secretary Perez aware of our concerns via the attached letter dated February, 2014, but received no response. While the date on the calendar has fast-forwarded approximately 10 months, the substantive issue still remains: DOL appears to be finalizing its final persuader rule without making the necessary changes to Form LM-21. Proceeding in this manner: (1) will create confusion for "persuaders" who will be forced to speculate as to what type of information must be recorded on Form LM-21; (2) will lead to duplicative costs as consultants will have to modify their reporting systems twice instead of once; (3) will lead to second-guessing by the Office of Labor-Management Standards as to what should be reported on Form LM-21; and (4) will obscure the true economic burden of the two proposals. These rulemaking deficiencies are explained in further detail in the attached February, 2014 letter to Secretary Perez.

Substantively, the proposed narrowing of the "advice" exemption under the Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act would remove the "bright-line" reporting test of direct communication with employees and replace it with a confusing subjective test involving the intent of the agreement between the employer and its attorney or consultant. The proposal would also increase the scope of covered "persuader" activity to cover any "protected, concerted activity in the workplace," the definition of which has expanded greatly under the current National Labor Relations Board. If implemented as proposed, the onerous reporting scheme and penalties will likely lead to a decrease in the labor-related legal services available to employers. Perversely, this may result in an increase in unfair labor practice allegations, as many employers — particularly small employers who do not have labor relations experts on staff — will be forced to navigate the complexities of federal labor law on their own and without legal counsel. These issues are only exacerbated by the current piecemeal approach to the persuader advice exemption and Form LM-21 rulemakings.

DOL should consolidate its proposed persuader rule with its planned changes to Form LM-21. Therefore, we respectfully request that the persuader rulemaking be returned to DOL to allow the Department to undertake an appropriately comprehensive rulemaking. Proceeding in this fashion is sound rulemaking and will provide greater clarity for the regulated community.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. Please do not hesitate to contact us with any questions.
